

Abstract

Described is a method for generating a usage task from usage data, constructing a pattern graph from the usage task, constructing a model graph which represents a space of equivalents to the usage task represented by the pattern graph and extracting sub-graphs from the model graph, wherein each of the extracted sub-graphs is isomorphic to the pattern graph.